Breckenridge Ski Resort is one of the most visited ski resorts in the western hemisphere. It boasts 2908 acres (11.7 square kilometers) of trails on five interconnected peaks and the highest ski lift in North America (the Imperial Chair). In 2013, the resort expanded by 23% by adding Peak 6; it was the largest ski area terrain expansion in the world in the past decade. For 2014, a new restaurant opened on Peak 9 and a new 6 person high speed lift was added on Peak 8. Breckenridge is located in an authentic ski town and Beaver Run Resort is in easy walking distance of the town.

UIA Winter Seminars

EXPERIENCE THE MAGIC!

You may well think that October is a strange time to talk about snow (unless you live in the southern hemisphere), but this may be the perfect time to tell you about a wonderful UIA event that happened in late February. The perfect time, because you will be reading this either just before or just after another wonderful event, the annual Congress of the UIA, held this year in Salvador, Brazil. What better time to reflect on the attractions of congresses and seminars sponsored by the UIA?

Sometimes, a certain magic descends on seminars that bring together people from widely varying backgrounds, a magic that can transform a humdrum meeting room into an unforgettable experience. That magic descended on Breckenridge, Colorado (USA) in late February and early March, when 40 highly experienced lawyers from 25 countries gathered together to study cross-border litigation. We structured the seminar in such a way that we could study in the morning and in the evening, leaving the middle of the day available for skiing or sightseeing or shopping.

I admit that in the beginning I was skeptical that participants would be eager to arise early and meet over breakfast for 2 hours; and that they would then return in the evening after a tiring day, for another 2 hours of presentations and exchanges over complex, difficult subjects. But that is what happened. Every day for 5 days, our meeting room filled to capacity even before the starting time, and every day for 5 days, the participants stayed until the end of each session, and sometimes even beyond. Why? Because we all discovered in those sessions a fascinating mix of law and culture. We experienced in a direct and personal way the sheer intellectual fun of exchanging ideas with fellow professionals whose insight and experience brought to vivid life the dry stuff of textbooks.

The subject matter varied widely, from how to win arguments before a judge, to how to obtain pretrial disclosures in other countries, to how mediation might sidestep some of the expense and uncertainty of litigation. But in every case, the presentations were lively, the participants were eager, the questions and subsequent discussions were fascinating. But even more importantly, those of us who were there felt that we came away with 40 new friends.

Perhaps it was the informal atmosphere, where the formality of jackets and ties was replaced by sweaters and après ski wear. Perhaps it was the incredibly beautiful surroundings of the Rocky Mountains. Perhaps it was the smooth organization (primarily the work of our colleague Winfried Schmitz and his team) or the high quality of the presentations. Perhaps it was the laughter and the stories exchanged among new friends over a good dinner at the end of a long day. Perhaps it was simply magic.

Whatever it was, those of us who were there will never forget those five days with colleagues from around the world. An experience like that is priceless, just as much as the experience of a grand and busy congress with 30 times the number of people and a far wider variety of subjects, with some great sightseeing crowning the event. A small seminar where a few dozen professionals come together to learn from each other can be like a tiny jewel whose beauty lasts and lasts, whose value increases over the course of years as the lessons learned there are put into practice and the friendships begun there become the friends of a lifetime.

We organize or sponsor 10-12 opportunities every year for you to experience some of the magic that descended on Breckenridge. Our seminars take place all over the world, and I encourage you to try one out in the coming months. We will be repeating the ski seminar format, next year in Sestriere, Italy, a major site for the Turin Olympics. We expect this one to be even better than before, so watch for our announcements.

Or, choose a different event on any subject that pleases you. I am certain that you will cherish the experience, as have thousands of your colleagues before you. I and my successors look forward to welcoming you at a future UIA seminar.

Let the magic begin!
